GENERAL REVIEW

Of Fresh, Salt And Smoked Fish Market.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 2, 1900.

The condition of the local fish market show no important change. There is a good movement of whole and cut fish, and many orders continue to come forward daily. The small dealers and shippers say they never had so much business before and that they are taxed to their full capacity to fill the orders. The weather the past week or so has been unfavorable for curing which has been rather a drawback to the shippers. There have been no arrivals of bank cod, so that the large shipments have greatly reduced the present stock held by producers.

Georges cured codfish are very firm and stock unusually light. The small fleet have brought in but medium trips, so this makes a shortage in the supply.

Considerable quantities are being landed that are now being taken off this shore, and sell for fair value to the curers. Hake, haddock and cusk are being largely used for cutting which variety are in good demand.

Several seiners came in during the night but their aggregate catch was not more than 200 bbls. They have found no fish lately, although having cruised from Portland to Nantucket. One fare sold to the order of a Philadelphia house, for about $16 per bbl. This is about one dollar advance over previous best sales. The season for seining operations is now drawing to a close. Already some are withdrawing their vessels and fitting them for other fishing. No change in way of demand and shipments is noticed, and should a few weeks more of such continue the receipts will almost drop to a minimum. The outlook at present for many more salt mackerel being landed is unfavorable and unless catches are made soon, the season will close with less than a 100,000 bbl. catch.

Fresh fish of all kinds are scarce and prices well sustained. The receipts of halibut has been light, and prices highest of the season.

The last of the fletched halibut fleet came in today and the catch has been a fairly average one, while price paid in the uncured condition is the highest for many years. The market for the smoked variety is firm and price must be high owing to sales ex-vessel.

The catch of shore herring to date has been small and unless something unexpected happens will be a failure, so far as supplying needed wants is concerned.

Three vessels have commenced to fit for salt herring voyages to Newfoundland, and others are to follow.

The trade in all branches is good, and this will continue for some time to come.

Mackerel News.

Sch. Vera, Capt. William Corkum, arrived from Middle Bank with a fine fare of 261 barrels of salt mackerel, all ploughed. As $16 1-4 per barrel was the first offer, Capt. Corkum will make a dandy stock of over $4000.

A number of the boats went out again last night and the sloop Beulah Maud came in early with 1000 mackerel.

Quite a number of the boats made big stocks on Wednesday's fare. The Helena's crew shared $108, while several others shared close to $100, and many others went over $75 share.

In addition to the big fleet of netters reported Wednesday in the TIMES, the following boats also landed fares:

Sloop Jennie Hupper, 1300 mackerel.

Sloop Laughing Water, 2500 mackerel.

Sloop Albert Drummond, 1000 mackerel.

The following fares of fresh mackerel were landed at the Fort this morning, sales being at from 8 to 8 1-2 cents apiece:

Sloop Messenger, 500 mackerel.

Sloop Sylvester, 500 mackerel.

Sch. H. M. Morris, 1000 mackerel.

Sloop Shamrock, 1300 mackerel.

The crew of sch. Bertha M. Miller shared $109.78 as the result of their Big Fares.

Sch. Lucinda E. Lowell, Capt. Antonio Conant, is in with her usual large fare of fresh cod. Sch. Judique also has a fine fare.
